One of the highlights include four #10 envelopes full of Admiral War Tax, sorted into MR1 to MR4, a small stockbook full of Admiral coils, a glassine with 100 (or so) 50c Admirals, some back of the book, etc. Well worth a close look to better appreciate the quantity and quality of this lot.

Appears fairly complete in period, and although we saw no 50c Bluenoses, there are loads of other higher value items throughout. Unchecked by us for varieties. Duplication does not appear to be higher for any particular issue, even with definitives, which would normally take up the bulk of the lot. An incredible opportunity for possible finds and no doubt patience will be rewarded. Clean lot, overall fine to very fine.

Antiquarian Prints & Maps

1959 Circa 1910 Sepia Photogravure Print of Captain Robert Falcon Scott, from a photograph taken circa 1904-05, wearing the Victoria Order and the Polar Medal, sunken-in on a card measuring 38 x 51 cm, with facsimile signature of Scott and imprint below the image reading "Copyright Maull & Fox, 187 Piccadilly, London, W.". The Print is overprinted with "SPECIMEN" handstamp. A lovely and detailed print, with a few foxing spots and other small faults here and there, still would look great framed in a stamp room, etc. According to Wikipedia, Robert Falcon Scott (1868-1912) was a Royal Navy officer and explorer who led two expeditions to the Antarctic regions: the Discovery expedition of 1901–1904 and the ill-fated Terra Nova expedition of 1910–1913. On the first expedition, he set a new southern record by marching to latitude 82°S and discovered the Antarctic Plateau, on which the South Pole is located. On the second venture, Scott led a party of five which reached the South Pole on 17 January 1912, less than five weeks after Amundsen's South Pole expedition. Non-specimen framed examples of this print have been selling at auction in England in the £900 to £1,100 range.
